

The Carmel Pine Cone Cymbal

The Editor's Column

Oh, For Goodness Sakes!

"Carmel has been 'high-hatting' other Peninsula towns since the 1944-45 edition of Who's Who in America went to press. The names of forty-three residents of Carmel are included in the new volume," says the energetic new editor of the Pacific Grove Tribune, a reincarnation of the Pacific Grove Tide, in commenting on the Who's Who item that appeared in The Pine Cone Cymbal several weeks ago. Which remark is a gross, though we believe unintentional, misrepresentation of our town. Most of our people in Who's Who are so busy making the best use possible of the brains and talent they are blessed with that they wouldn't have time to go around "high-hatting" people even if they weren't too intelligent to indulge in such foolishness.

As for the town itself going "high-hat" over a sizable lineup of its citizens in Who's Who—my goodness! Of course we appreciate our brilliant fellow townsmen as we appreciate the pine trees and madrone at our door-steps and the rumble of the surf on our beach. They are part of our natural surroundings and contribute their part, along with a good many other of our intelligent, talented and worth while citizens who have not received the nod from Who's Who, to making Carmel the pleasant place it is in which to live. But there is nothing new about their presence here. The town was founded by Who's Whoers. At time went on other of our citizens have been included in Who's Who, and Who's Whoers have been attracted here by the congenial atmosphere, so that their number has increased until they make up a larger proportion of the population than is generally found in a community of this size, but they are not such a novelty as to throw the town off balance to the extent of going "high-hat" over them.

Douglas Winslow

Douglas Winslow, a resident of Carmel since 1935, died at noon yesterday in the Peninsula Community Hospital, following an illness of the past two months. He was 58 years of age.

Mr. Winslow was born in Kent, England, and served during World War I with the Canadian forces, participating in action in France and at Salonika. He was several times wounded in the course of duty and was hospitalized in Greece for eleven months when he contracted amoebic dysentery.

He came first to this country in 1933 and two years later chose Carmel as his permanent home, finding it more beautiful than any other place outside of his beloved

Parents Notified Bud Carter Lost In Sicily Action

Word has been received from the War Department by Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Carter, formerly of Carmel, now making their home in Berkeley, that their son, Second Lieutenant Douglas "Bud" Carter, U. S. Army Air Corps, lost his life in the action from which he was reported missing on July 13, 1943.

Young Lieutenant Carter, who reached his 22nd birthday on July 1 of last year, was engaged in the air transport of paratroops for the invasion of Sicily, at the time of his death. An air medal signifying his "skill, courage and devotion to duty" was presented last May 7th to his father in ceremonies held at Hamilton Field, Marin County for "meritorious achievement while participating in night aerial flights as a member of combat crews in unarmed, unarmored and unescorted Troop Carrier Aircraft, at an altitude of less than 500 feet, under adverse flying conditions, over enemy held terrain while receiving hostile ground fire."

A native of New York, "Bud" Carter came first to Carmel at the age of nine, making a year-long visit then with his grandmother, Mrs. Agnes C. Montgomery, and his two aunts, the Misses Elizabeth and Ellen Montgomery, in their home on Santa Lucia. He attended Sunset School and began his lasting friendships with his classmates Frederick McIndoe and Don Elias. These three pals were reunited in Carmel by coincidence on February 10, 1943, during a leave after receiving his wings on February 6 at Roswell, New Mexico.

Rita Singstad, Skier, Golfer Visiting Here

Now spending a couple of months in Carmel, with her headquarters at Carmel Inn, but practicing long hours daily on the Pebble Beach golf course, which lured her here, is Miss Rita Singstad of New York, noted young skier and world traveler.

Everything about Miss Singstad's attractive appearance suggests her eager enthusiasm for outdoor sports as well as her distinctive heritage from a Norwegian father and a Danish mother. Her father is Ole Singstad, world expert tunnel engineer, designer of the Holland and Queens Midtown tunnels in New York City who was presented on February 11 of this year by Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia with the Lincoln Award for contributing the most toward the city in 1943. He has been called upon as consultant engineer in the building of tunnels all over the world and decorated for his achievements by both King Haakon of Norway and King Albert of Belgium. He is now advisor to the engineering faculty of Princeton University and the holder of numerous honorary degrees from the leading universities of the country.

Miss Singstad, a native of New York, attended school in Paris and had just completed her studies at Schloss Traunsee in Austria a few months before the Anschluss. At that time few of her thoughts were engaged by the possibility of war in Europe; in all of the thirty-five different countries and possessions through which she had traveled with her parents, her interest had been solely centered upon the beauties of scenery and the fascinations of varied peoples and customs. Her mother, however, had been apprehensive of the coming conflagration since before the Anschluss, basing her predictions upon the long trainloads of camouflaged trucks she observed passing mysteriously to and fro through Germany.

For years Miss Singstad has followed the news about the world with her ski equipment. In 1941 she spent five months in Chili, where the skiing was "different, but not the best," and for a while during the past winter she has been skiing in Alta, Utah.

This is her first glimpse of Carmel, although three years ago she made her first brief acquaintance with California. She came to Carmel intending to stay for a few days, and has prolonged her visit from week to week, enchanted by the challenge as well as the surrounding scenery offered by the Pebble Beach golf course.

With the outbreak of war, Miss Singstad returned to New York, where she has served for 14 months as the chairman of the canteen department of Officers at Home, a service club established

Miss Aileen McGee told the city council, meeting as a board of equalization Wednesday morning, that the assessment that City Clerk and Assessor Peter Mawdsley had placed on her property on the west side of Monte Verde between Ocean and Seventh was, "In the realm of fiction."

Hers is the only protest that has been placed before the board in its four days of meeting. It was lively enough to produce a half hour's heated discussion.

Five years ago the lot next to hers sold for $900, Miss McGee said, and this year her lot is assessed at $650 which, at 50% of valuation, the new basis of Carmel assessment, places the lot value at $1300. It was formerly assessed at $450.

"Besides, my lot has been ruined by the filling in of the gully in front of All Saints' Church without proper provision for drainage. When it rains, my place is like a river. I have to climb over a stile to get into my house."

Councilman Allen Knight observed that the old assessment of $450.00 was about right, according to the sale value, and City Clerk and Assessor Peter Mawdsley said that assessments couldn't be governed by sale price. He pointed out that all the assessments in that locality were the same. "If I change one, I'll change all, unless there is some separate factor effecting this lot."

Miss McGee said that was why she had brought up the drainage situation. Her property value had decreased rather than increased, she maintained because of the

Dower Chest On Exhibit At Carmel Gallery

On exhibit this week at the Carmel Art Association gallery is a charming example of traditional Americana in the form of a painted dower chest, the recently completed work of Paul Mays, and now the property of Miss Ellen Louise Hine, who has loaned it for the present showing.

Sturdily constructed of aromatic cedar, the chest depicts on its front panel, against a background of jade green and Venetian red with embellishments of gold leaf, a legendary scene from the annals of the Potter family, for whose young descendant, Miss Marnie Gibson Hine, this highly ornamental as well as useful piece of furniture has been designed. The scene shows the original Jared Potter riding one fine day in 1795 past a colonial mansion with its Ionic pillars and catching a glimpse of the shy and lovely damsel whom he decided then and there to return and carry off as his wife. On the end panels are decorations symbolic of fruitfulness, and inside the lid appear two white horses rampant, bearing between them a shield inscribed with the monogram M.G.H. Central decoration of the top of the chest is the coat of arms of the Potter family, with its motto, Semper Fidelis.

Runner up with "best dog" was Jerry, Bob Cecil's cocker spaniel. Dick Colvin's Flower received "best cat" award, while Mary Fowler entered the "best trained animal" Butch, a toy terrier that could sing! Small Fry, Beverly Bolton's cat, received the nod for the best costume. Betty Paston had the biggest animal, a spaniel named Jeff, and Mary and Mort Henderson entered the smallest

Garden Club Enjoys Fuchsia Tour At Lyon, Hedges Homes

By FLORA HARTWELL
Chairman, Garden Section,
Woman's Club

The members of the Garden Section of the Carmel Woman's Club and their friends spent a delightful afternoon last Saturday in the fuchsia gardens of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Lyon and of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Hedges of Pacific Grove.

Mrs. Lyon has over 400 named varieties of large fuchsia plants laden with their gem-like blossoms, each having a charm of its very own. They varied from a plant bearing a shower of tiny pendants, called Rain, to the Commander-in-Chief whose ruffled blooms were over three inches across.

After spending an hour or so wandering about this garden, the guests partook of punch in the patio. Then they started for the lovely, spacious gardens of the Hedges where another treat was in store for them. Mr. and Mrs. Hedges took up fuchsia culture as a hobby but as their enthusiasm knew no bounds, they have now gone into it commercially. This enabled their guests to take home with them plants of the varieties they most admired.

Nowhere do fuchsias find a more congenial climate than on this Peninsula. They are being featured more and more in the home gardens here.

The memory of the gay array of blossoms seen Saturday will linger long in the minds of all the visitors.

The only War Bond you'll ever regret is the one you didn't buy!

RED CROSS NEWS

By HELEN A. FIELD

Mrs. A. M. Allan, Chairman of Surgical Dressings at the Carmel Red Cross, anticipates a need for an increased number of workers in the Surgical Dressings Unit.

Commercial manufacturers are unable to procure sufficient machinery and labor to fill the vast requirements of the Army. In 1942 The American Red Cross, at the request of the Surgeon General's office, agreed to make all the dressings needed by the Army over and above those made by industrial concerns. In 1943 the Red Cross shipped to the Army one billion dressings. Virtually all such dressings go overseas to places where United States troops are in action. In addition to meeting the requirements of the Army Red Cross volunteers made a considerable number of dressings for the Navy. Before the invasion of Europe they were producing three million dressings a day. Even more are needed now that the invasion is actually in progress.

It is well for us to remember that the work of each chapter,

Mrs. Williamson Will Speak At Republican Meet

Mrs. Jessie Williamson of Berkeley will be the speaker at a meeting of the Monterey Peninsula Republican Women's Club at the Girl Scout house on Saturday.

President of the California Council of Republican Women and a member of the Executive Board of the National Federation of Republican Women's Clubs, Mrs. Williamson was appointed by Governor Warren as a member of the State Social Welfare Board last year.

Long active in Republican politics, Mrs. Williamson has served as Vice Chairman of the State Central Committee. For a number of years she has been Chairman of the Committee on Juvenile Delinquency for the Federation of Women's Clubs of Alameda County and has served as a member of the Berkeley Recreation Commission. She was elected a National Committeewoman at the Republican Convention by the California delegation on June 28th.

Prior to the meeting Saturday afternoon, Mrs. Cranston, Chairman of the Monterey Peninsula Republican Women's Club is entertaining at lunch in honor of Mrs. Williamson,—her other guests being the members of the Board of the Club.

Josephine Waters

The many Peninsula friends of Mrs. Henry H. Waters were deeply shocked to learn of her sudden death on Thursday night, July 6, at Shannon Waters, her ranch home in Carmel Valley.

Mrs. Waters was born in 1889 in Evanston, Illinois, the daughter of the late Frederick Peabody of the Cluett, Peabody company, and Mrs. Sarah Peabody, now residing in London. Possessed of unusual talents both in music and in art, she was graduated from St. Agnes Seminary in Albany, New York, and spent the greater part of her youth abroad, studying the piano at the conservatory of music in Lausanne, Switzerland, and acquiring through wide travel a fluency in French, German and Spanish.

Before coming, five years ago, to make her home in Carmel, Mrs. Waters lived for some time in San Antonio, Texas. In addition to building a home for herself on Carmel Point, she built Mayfair House on Lincoln street, later selling both properties and with her husband, Henry Harcourt Waters, devoting her time to the development of the Carmel Valley ranch, where for the past year her generous hospitality has been shared on numerous occasions by a wide circle of friends. A woman of fine culture, she was deeply appreciated by those who knew her well for her kindly spirit and gentle humanity.

She is survived by her mother, Mrs. Sarah Peabody of London, her husband, Mr. H. H. Waters of Carmel, three sisters: Mrs. Willard Downing of New Canaan, Connecticut; Mrs. Ruth Fleming of Southport, Connecticut, and Mrs. Rachel Douglas of Montecito, and a brother, Mr. Frederick Peabody of Arizona.

Owing to the fact that she was not under doctor's care at the time of her death, the coroner is conducting a routine investigation.

Services will be held today at 11 o'clock at Paul's Mortuary, the Reverend Carel Hulsewe officiating.

Pre-School Playroom Sponsored By Service Wives Well Attended

The supervised playroom on Wednesday and Friday mornings from ten to twelve at Sunset School has met with enthusiastic response from Carmel mothers.

Mrs. Jerome J. Werner's plan to organize a playroom that would enable a mother to have free time for a dentist appointment, war activity or shopping is now a reality. The children may come regularly or occasionally, depending on individual needs. For the preschool child, too young for the Carmel Recreation Program, it also offers the advantage of companionship of other children.

The Service Wives' Center of the A.W.V.S. is sponsoring the play group and Sunset School has cooperated by offering the use of the kindergarten room and lower playground.

Volunteering with Mrs. Werner are Mrs. M. E. Foster, Mrs. D. C. Davis, Mrs. Harold Hurst and Mrs. D. T. Paternaud as well as the Misses Joan Templin, Jennefer Lloyd, Mary Lodmell and Ann Vaughn.

A nominal fee of 25 cents a morning is charged to cover maintenance and materials. Any contributions of toys will be gratefully accepted at the Service Wives Center desk in the A.W.V.S. office in Pine Inn.

Symposium On Racial Problems To Be Held In Monterey, July 24

Date was set for the evening of July 24, eight o'clock in the Council Chambers at Colton Hall in Monterey for a symposium of speakers to present the problems of minority racial groups in this locality at a meeting of the steering committee of the Monterey Peninsula Interracial Committee Tuesday night at the home of Thor Krogh, Principal of Monterey High School.

Committee members present to plan a program of meetings and discussions were: Mrs. Clay O'Rear, Mrs. Toni Ricketts, Wellington Smith, Alfred McNichols, R. C. Gill, Mrs. Dwight Morrow, Jr., Mrs. Marion Todd, and Eben Whittlesey. In addition to arranging the July 24 meeting, which will be open to the public, the committee laid plans for a series of talks by speakers who are qualified in the field of sociology to present aspects of minority issues with the view of educating the public as to their effects on racial problems.

The steering committee also discussed housing for the families of the Negro troops on the Peninsula, and it was reported that though a canvass of housing accommodations was underway no final report was available yet.

At the next meeting a nominating committee will be appointed to select a permanent chairman and other officers.

Mawdsley Leads In Real Estate Group War Bond Sales

Though the community as a whole has so far failed to make its bond quota, the real estate people of the town have more than filled the quota of $3000.00 in bonds that they were assigned to sell. Five Carmel firms have sold a total of $12,811.75, Corum Jackson, president of the Real Estate Board announced yesterday.

Leading the list was City Clerk Peter Mawdsley with $4100.50 in bond sales to his credit. Gladys Johnston followed with $3000.00, the Carmel Realty, $2900.00. Arthur Shand, Ernest Morehouse and Betty Jean Newell also sold a substantial amount.

In Carmel Valley Irene Baldwin "hit the jack pot," according to Jackson, selling $10,475.00.

In 1936 he came from New York with his parents to make his home in Carmel, attending Monterey High School and leaving upon all with whom he came in contact a deep impression of his strong, quiet personality, his capacity for loyal friendships, the sense of his unusual promise. It has often been said of "Bud" Carter that even those who met him casually found him impossible to forget.

Even after his family moved to Berkeley, he continued to consider Carmel his home, and returned for summers of horseback riding in the Valley and down the coast. He enrolled in San Luis Obispo Junior College, and studied for a while in Davis before enlisting in the Air Corps in June 1942. He was sent overseas to North Africa in June, 1943.

Surviving are his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Carter, his grandmother, Mrs. Agnes C. Montgomery of Carmel, two brothers: Joseph N. Carter, employed at Douglas Aircraft, Santa Monica, and Richard Carter of the art department of Look Magazine, New York; and two aunts: Miss Elizabeth Montgomery and Miss Ellen Montgomery, both of Carmel.

FROM A WINDOW IN VAGABOND'S HOUSE . By Don Blanding

In these days when all of us are giving, or should be giving, our blood into the great life-reservoirs of the Blood Banks, and turning our money into War Bonds and lending our time and energy to the common cause of humanity and our fighting forces, we must also share or give that other plasma which is faith, passing it along to others who, under the bludgeoning of fate, may be faltering or lost in the fog of despair, bewilderment and especially sorrow which is increasingly a part of our living now.

It is not easy to reveal the intimate and dear things of one's heart for all to see, and yet this common need urges that we do this very thing, if the message we have seems to have the plasma of hope in it.

I am passing along an intimate and splendid thing which was said to me by one I loved when with all of the courage we could muster we faced the inevitable and swiftly approaching separation which a malignant illness forced upon us. The words which were spoken to me were such a challenge and comfort that I would indeed be selfish to keep them to myself when the need is so great for just such sincere messages.

I was told this: "Above all things I ask that you do not grieve darkly and long for me. You know that I would turn back from the gates of Heaven and walk barefoot through Hell to be with you and near you if you needed me or called to me. We do not know a great deal about life after this event called 'death.' We (you and I) believe that we go on somewhat as we are here with a little more understanding, working toward some far fine goal which is revealed to us when we are capable of seeing it. But again I ask, do not grieve bitterly nor long because if it is permitted us to come back to the presence of those we love I shall come back. But, if your awareness of my presence makes you sad then I would have to go away, and I would be a very lonely ghost, indeed."

"In life I wanted to bring happiness to you; death could not change that desire. So, if you think that you feel my nearness, remember quickly and with all of your strength all of the joyous things we shared; turn swiftly to the picture album of your memory and recall the happiest days, the dearest hours of laughter, and the tender absurd things which make human associations so dear. If you can do this, then, if I can get passports through that strange No-Man's land which we think about so much and actually know so little, I will come often and happily. Remember what I have asked you."

I did remember those words. I followed them as best I could. They were words of great wisdom and forethought. Not only at the time did they exorcise the grim phantoms which crowd about, but drove them away forever in my thinking.

It is not with the dark flowers of sorrow that we honor those whom we have loved and who have loved us dearly. It is rather by planting the seeds of valiant and courageous happiness which we may share with others that we make the true victory gardens of the spirit.

I hope that this talisman of courage which was given to me will serve you if you have need of it now or in the days ahead.

Aloha.

THE INCREDIBLE THING

A Story

BY PHIL NESBITT

Sometimes secret and incredible scenes transpire betwixt dusk and dawn. Such an event, or scene, in all its dreadful reality once occurred to me.

Captain Cook's Islands or, as they are more commonly called, the Sandwich or Hawaiian group, was the setting of my experience. The particular island called Kauai. It is the largest of the several islands which comprise the group.

I had left the urban city of Honolulu for the Isle of Kauai with my sketching kit and paints, determined to spend several weeks in solitude at Hano Leii, a little resort settlement on the far side of the island. Solitude is somehow provocative of the best effort in painting, and Hano Leii proved solitary beyond my dreams.

Ah, but what a place of beauty! A mighty blue and jagged range of high peaks upthrust itself along the spume covered shore. Mellow warm paddy fields lay between peaks and sea.

The house I selected for my abode was a diminutive shack set in the dead center of a lush green meadow. The meadow included a frog pond which supported in their prime a small herd of monster bellowing bull frogs. A Chinese lady owned the shack, Madame Chuck Chin, (This was actually her name). She lived nearby in a barroom and grocery store which was but one of the scattered string of small dwellings built along the dirt road of Hano Leii. The one dirt road. I must tell you more about my shack.

It held a bed, with mosquito netting, a chair and a table. Erect against one of the outside walls was a lean-to containing a shower bath. There was also a small window in the room. When I had arrived at Hano Leii, the moon crossed the night sky as a slender bow. The days which followed my arrival were utterly long and bright. My time was spent in sketching those rare and majestic peaks. The great beat of the ocean pounded everlastingly upon my subconscious ear. In fact, so ever present was the spirit of the paddy fields, the peaks and the sea, that very soon they became individually personified as vast beings to my mind. My head was empty of the confusion of the so called important aspects of communal matters, those of human groups and circumstances. I lost my self in the embrace of the bigger beings which I have described. Somehow, though I cannot tell how, I stood purified and open to the world of the spirit.

The moon rose night after night, waxing fatter and whiter and more glorious. Yet my sleep began to be disturbed in the most subtle fashion. The first hint of unrest came during the third night spent in the little shack. I awakened at two o'clock with a vague sense of not being alone. I soon dropped off again to a period of wild and terrifying dreams. The weeks passing saw me awakening each night at two o'clock with an ever increasing sharpness, until toward the beginning of the second week I was sitting bolt upright in the mosquito netting covered bed, staring intently about the room in the pure light of the moon, for that uncanny element which shared with me the small interior.

It was the thirteenth night that saw me staring with fixed and determined purpose at the

POETRY

". . . AND SLIPPERS OF GOLD"

*A globe of fire in a sea of mist,
A sundown pennant of amethyst,
A sky of cirrus, all scarlet-kissed! . . .
The evening plane weaves a thread of night
Into its sunset-glорied flight.*

*Rose cobblestones on a rose-lane sky
Arching over blue lazuli—
High as the new moon—twice as high
As the golden point of the hilltop tree
Dwarfing this wondering, earth-small me!*

*Some day, when I am old . . . and old—
My life's worn beads all fully told—
Such sunset path of rose and gold
Be mine . . . to reach that shining dawn! . . .
And slippers of gold, to walk thereon.*

—BLANCHE LOFTON.

HONOLULU MORNING

*The gods unroll the crimson and gold fabric of morning, and land and sea awake:
far forest breathes, and the bearded surf dances, trampling the bright curve of the reef.*

*Hibiscus faces smile back at the smiling sunlight, greeting a world made new with the new day.
Even these city pavements feel the touch of the ancient beauty
beneath this air that quivers in golden light, and the faces of the buildings are gracious, their roofs brushed with fragrance of many petals.*

*This is a world fit for song and for dancing, for twining of wreaths with the clear dew still on them to bring to the new friends, the swift sea-runners who come gaily
to stand with us in fresh joy at the ancient altar the fire-gods built in the time when the earth was young.*

—CLIFFORD GESSLER

WERE IT NOT BETTER?

*There is so little one can say—
Were it not better now just to be still?
To listen to the pine-boughs in the wind,
To hear the deep slow measure of the sea,
To breathe the scent of grasses in the sun,
To note the little unsuspected flowers
That bloom in byways of the field?*

*France is a battle-ground once more—
Our sons are there, our lovers and our friends—
We too are there
But for this tearless aching remnant left
To watch how beautiful a world can be
When filled with peace and simple joyousness;
But for this question tearing at the heart
That is not answered by the reasoned word
But waits and prays and will not be consoled.*

REVIEWS

gloomy, half lighted little room. My wide open eyes roved the four walls, fell upon the chair, the doorway, the table.

It was only with the greatest difficulty that I forced myself again to sleep. The next night was to be the night. I did not know, naturally. During the day I made a rather good sketch of the biggest peak. It was a blue cast picture. It showed the peak high against the sky. Water was pictured tumbling whitely down its shaggy slopes. At the base of the picture were the paddy fields which I had come to enjoy so much.

When I sat up the following night at the stroke of two, I was awake, fully awake. I had placed the picture on the table, so that it literally faced both me and the shaft of now brilliant white moonlight which flowed in through the square frame of the window. I saw first the picture. Then the doorway at the foot of the bed. You know how curious the vision is. One can always see that which lies just below the point of interest, or above.

My eyes wandered to the right wall of the room. The degree of light was not modest. I could really see quite clearly. Lying upon the bed with me, as I could see low in my gaze, was a human figure shrouded in a black fringed shawl! It was not a large form, but it was terribly human and ominous. I confess that I was so violently disturbed by this uncouth apparition that my very bloodstream seemed to freeze. I was unable to command a single motor impulse. Frozen with terror, I merely sat there. As I looked in stupefaction at the thing, it began to fade before my stare in blotchy patches. Then it was gone, leaving only a seemingly depressed long hollow in the right side of the double bed.

I fell from the bed, pulling the mosquito netting from its high hook. Then my power of animation came back. Wildly I scrambled forth, naked as birth, to feel the wet grass of the moonlit meadow beneath my feet. I ran to Madame Chuck Chin's barroom down the road. When I had at last awakened her, she was in no way bothered by my lack of clothing. A blanket was fetched and I went to sleep on a small couch on the verandah. The couch was ancient. The coil springs in it had long since gone unrestrained.

It was dawn when I crept back to the shack to gather my belongings and return to put the question squarely to Madame Chuck Chin. "What on God's green earth was wrong with the shack?"

It was only after much persistent and forceful inquiry that I managed to dig from her mind the actualities of the case. I was told by Madame Chuck Chin a tale of resounding horror and brutality. Or at least it did so appear at the time.

Three months before I had rented the small meadow-bound shack, it had been let to a Japanese man and wife. The wife was small. The Japanese loved his beer. One day he came and lay in a drunken stupor for three days on Madame Chuck Chin's little barroom floor. No one had seen the little Japanese wife. Suspicion welled forth. Led by Madame Chuck Chin, a group of villagers went across the meadow to the shack.

They found her lying on the right side of the bed, wrapped in her black fringed Japanese shawl. She was dead, having had her skull split by a cane knife which lay beside the bed. The husband was duly punished for his crime, and the bloodstains washed away.

D. S. Billington

An interesting and colorful life came to a close on Wednesday, July 5, with the death of Demetrius Sheldon Billington, who passed away quietly in his sleep on the eve of his 89th birthday, at his home on Monte Verde and Twelfth street.

Born in 1855 in Limestone County, Texas, Mr. Billington was an active participant in the exciting events of pioneer days. As a boy he worked for a time on the Missouri River boats, later joining a Missouri showboat troupe as a singer. A buffalo hunt took him in 1877 to South Dakota and he remained to spend the greater part of his life there, driving stage coach and serving for many years as deputy sheriff of Deadwood. For eight years he was postmaster at Spearfish, South Dakota, leaving this position in 1940 to accompany his daughter Estelle, now Mrs. James Fontana, to Carmel when she became a member of the Sunset School faculty, and for the past four years he made his home here with her. The host of friends made and kept during his long life were always eager listeners to the exciting tales of his pioneer adventures.

Mr. Billington is survived by three daughters: Mrs. James Fontana of Carmel; Mrs. Joseph M. Colaw, Monterey, Virginia; Mrs. R. S. Bishop, Dixon Montana; and two sons: Leslie Billington of Merced, and Sydney Billington of Arles, Montana.

Funeral services were held at Dorney's Chapel, Monterey, on Friday afternoon, Dr. James E. Crowther officiating.

Bronze Star Medal To Col. Fergusson

Word was received this past week that Lieutenant Colonel Robert G. Fergusson, G.S.C. has been awarded the bronze star medal by the War Department for "achievement as assistant chief of staff, G-2, 7th Infantry Division, prior to and during attack on Kwajalein Island from September 15, 1942, to February 5, 1944."

Col. Fergusson, a graduate of the U. S. Military Academy with the class of 1936, was stationed for the next two years at the Presidio of Monterey, and his marriage to Miss Charlotte Lawrence, daughter of Colonel and Mrs. C. G. Lawrence of Carmel, took place in November, 1937, the first military wedding to occur at Mission San Carlos de Borromeo since some time in the last century. After being stationed for a short time in San Francisco, Lt. Col. Fergusson was transferred to Hawaii, where the young couple were making their home on December 7, 1941. After their return to the states, he joined the Seventh Division, with whom he is now on overseas duty.

Mrs. Fergusson and their fifteen-months-old son, Robert Charles Lawrence Fergusson, have their home in Carmel Woods near that of Col. and Mrs. Lawrence.

New Guinea's Coral Atolls Things Of Beauty Writes Cpl. John Boning

A few hours before his outfit pushed off for combat duty in the South Pacific, Corp. John Boning, stationed at Fort Ord, made a visit to Carmel Art Gallery. When he spoke of his interest in painting, Curator Elizabeth Cass gave him the sketch kit Art in National Defense had left with her to put on exhibit. That was a good many months ago. This week Mrs. Cass received a letter from Corp. Boning, now in New Guinea, with the now "somewhat battered sketch box" still in his possession.

New Guinea,
June 25, 1944

Dear Mrs. Cass:

A somewhat battered sketch box is here on my desk, which reminds me to write you. You remember it was the last one you had at the museum and you gave it to me just before I sailed; I promised you a line.

That was a long time ago, and a lot has happened. We spent some time in Australia and then began the drive up the Guinea coast, then took part in the New Britain invasion, and are now waiting to see what is next. There have been good times and bad times, but the main thing we are all looking forward to now is getting back, even though we have no idea when that will be.

In spite of all you hear about New Guinea mud and bugs and disease there are some beautiful spots here. My favorite one is a coral atoll off the coast here that has all the beauties of a movie set, with a Jade and Turquoise lagoon, white coral sand beaches, palm trees, flowers, mango trees, natives and the blessed quality, Quietness — something practically unknown in the army. I have gotten acquainted with the natives there since learning Pigin English and enjoy them very much. They are so simple and unspoiled, with a lot of admirable qualities that we have lost in the process of being "civilized." But even they have not been able to escape the war, as the Japs treated them badly, taking their women, their gardens and leaving them pretty torn up. Now they are trying to re-establish their villages again. The natives of this section are known for their wonderful wood carving and I have managed to get a few good pieces that were done before the war. Now all the men are away with the Australian army and only the old fellows are left to do anything of that sort. As would be expected of a primitive people their designs follow things of nature, birds, fish, etc., all conventionalized into the old old Melanesian patterns. Most of the woodcarving is finished by putting it in the mud of the Mangrove swamps until it turns jet black and takes on a finish like polished black stone.

Sketching has been somewhat spasmodic but I have gotten a few things and a lot of ideas, and rolls and rolls of color photographs of everything in sight. The old sketch box has travelled right along and is still serving. I have enjoyed it an awful lot.

Occasionally I see one of Major Bilger's "Pine Cones" from Carmel and always read the art news. You have had some interesting exhibitions.

Very best of wishes to you,
Sincerely,
John Boning.

Aw Gee—A Fella Can't Even Take A Walk Nowadays

John Shiffeler took a walk Tuesday morning at 8:30 and by 9 o'clock Chief of Police Roy Frates was very much interested in his whereabouts because John, who is approximately three and a half years old, had left his home on Scenic and Seventh without the formality of informing his mother of his plans. Missing him, Mrs. Shiffeler searched the beach, and failing to find any trace of him, appealed to the Carmel Police Department for assistance.

Frates was able to trace the young man as far as the Pebble Beach Gate to the Seventeen Mile Drive but beyond that point all evidence of his presence had vanished. However, at the Seventeen Mile Drive Gate at the Junction of the Monterey-Pacific Grove highway, he walked into the police net and was gathered in for his mother.

CONSERVE FUEL...

If you had a leaky roof on your home—you would fix the leak mighty soon, wouldn't you? Fixing leaks saves money.

Insulating your home is like fixing a leaking roof. When you heat your house without insulation, for example, heat rises and seeps through the ceiling plaster and leaks up through the attic and roof. Insulation blankets in house heating and helps check heat loss. Insulation also helps prevent summer heat from seeping down from the hot attic and through the whole house. Year 'round—year in and year out—Insulation will save you money and add to health and comfort.

It will pay you to Insulate the ceilings in your home. Insulation may save as much as 30% in heating costs next winter. And by stopping this heat waste you help conserve fuel that is vitally needed in war production.

The new light-weight Insulating materials, now available without restriction, are low in cost. Special F.H.A. terms are in effect. Easy monthly payments start November 1st. Insulate now—save money.

ATTENTION!
ALL HOME CANNERS!

Before you begin your 1944 canning, Good Housekeeping Magazine advises you: use the boiling-water bath method for tomatoes and fruits, only. Can all vegetables except tomatoes by the correct use of a pressure cooker to be sure of killing botulinus germs. In the last few years, cases of botulinus food poisoning have cropped up in widely different parts of the country. Buy, borrow, share a pressure cooker—but don't can low-acid vegetables any other way. If you want further information, write Good Housekeeping Magazine, 959 Eighth Ave., New York 19, N. Y.

Rebecca Kimmel, July 11

Major and Mrs. George Kimmel of Junipero and Third streets are the parents of a daughter, Rebecca Jean, born at the Peninsula Community Hospital on Tuesday, July 11.

For that cocktail or birthday party, entertain your friends with the string music of Manuel Campos and his Rancheros, former Del Monte Hotel Entertainers, all wearing colorful Mexican outfits and Zarapes. Cost reasonable.

ALL SAINTS' CHURCH

Next Sunday at 8:00 a. m., Service of the Holy Communion. At 11:00 a. m. Morning Prayer with Sermon Message by the Very Rev. Dr. James M. Malloch, Dean of St. James' Cathedral, Fresno, who is filling the pulpit at All Saints' during the absence of the Rector. The Dean's subject will be "What We Really Know About God." Organ Offertory: "Adagio," Mendelssohn. Alice Lee Keith, organist. Organ numbers will include "Prayer" by Lemaigre, Offertoire in A, Batiste, and a Postlude by Rinck. All Saints' is a House of Prayer for All People and welcomes the visitor to Carmel. Special Intercessions for the men and women in the Services of our country at each worship service. Children can be left in the Church School annex south of the church building from 10:45 on in charge of a competent person.

CHURCH OF THE WAYFARER

"The Original Nordic," will be the sermon theme by Dr. James E. Crowther next Sunday morning at the Church of the Wayfarer. The message is from the parable of Jonah, a man so inflated with racial conceit that he protested against God's everlasting mercy toward "the lesser breeds without the law." The organ music, played by Elinor Smith, will be: "Cantilene," Ashford; "Faith Of Our Fathers," Rogers; "Andante," Walczynski; "Ave Maria," Franz; "Sing Unto God," Cooke. The Church School begins at 9:45; the Church Service is at eleven. Visitors are cordially invited.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCH

"He that hath the Son hath life; and he that hath not the Son of God hath not life." These words from I John comprise the Golden Text to be used Sunday, July 16, in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts. The subject of the Lesson-Sermon will be "Life."

Included among the Scriptural selections will be: "How much better is it to get wisdom than gold! and to get understanding rather to be chosen than silver! Understanding is a wellspring of life unto him that hath it." (Prov. 16:16, 22 to:).

Young Pretender
Takes New Honors
At Santa Cruz Show

The Young Pretender of Andley, the smooth fox terrier belonging to Mrs. Derek Rayne of Carmel Valley, was judged Best Fox Terrier at last Sunday's Santa Cruz Kennel club show. This repeats his win at the Del Monte show of last month.

However, at Santa Cruz he went even farther and was awarded first prize in the Terrier Variety Group, and there are more than twenty different terrier breeds competing in this classification. He is now an American Kennel Club champion, subject to official confirmation.

For Printing that is different—Telephone 2, The Pine Cone Press.

Lions Still On Deck
After Weer Dinner

In the absence of Mrs. Carl Schnuch, who caters for the Lions Club, Lloyd Weer presided over the kitchen range at the dinner meeting of the Club Tuesday night, whipping up enchiladas, green salad, spaghetti and pie à la mode for the ingestion of his fellow club members.

Bob Weaver was taken in as a new member, and Harry Work of San Jose occupied the visiting Lions chair. During the business meeting Weer was called from the kitchen to receive the past president's pin and a handsome imported briar pipe in recognition of his service to the club as president for the past twenty months. He, along with Fred Goss, was also the recipients of a set of friendship rings.

Rita Singstad
Visiting Here

(Continued from page 1) in the Murray Hill house of Mrs. Junius Morgan. Her present trip to California was made hurriedly in order to visit with her brother, Private Paul Singstad, stationed in Pasadena with the Army Special Training Program. Unfortunately, just before her arrival, he was transferred to crash boat training in Mississippi, and she remained to visit the USO canteens in southern California and in San Francisco.

This Saturday evening Miss Singstad will be the guest of honor at the Barndoor Canteen at the Carmel USO.

Douglas Winslow

(Continued from page 1) Kent. The home which he and Mrs. Winslow established for themselves on Bay View and Inspiration at Carmel Point has long been notable for the beauty of its surrounding gardens, in which he took great delight. Both he and Mrs. Winslow have taken an active part in community life, especially in the work of the Red Cross. For some time he has served as a member of the Red Cross board of directors and it was largely through his efforts on the building committee that the organization obtained its present quarters.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Anne L. Winslow of Carmel; two sisters and nine nephews and nieces, all of whom live abroad, in England and Canada, where one of his nephews is serving as a radioman with the Canadian Armed Forces.

Private funeral services are in charge of Paul's Mortuary, the time of which has not yet been arranged.

Godwin Appeals To Citizens To Meet Bond Quota

"Carmel has never failed yet. It cannot fail now."

In those words Harrison Godwin, chairman of the 5th War Loan Drive summed up his feelings regarding the shortage in this city's quota of the war loan.

"We were assigned a quota larger than any ever before handed to a community this size," continued Mr. Godwin. "It was staggering, but our time has been extended and my committee is working tooth and nail to carry us over the top. I know that hundreds here have bought to the limit of their ability, or at least that is what they think. There is, however, no limit to what the sons and daughters of this community now in uniform in all corners of the world are giving. So we, who feel that we have done our utmost, must do just a little bit more. An extra bond for each will put us over the top. We need that extra bond. We must have that extra bond. And I urge that each one of us buy that extra bond this week."

Floods, Cess Pool
Urged As Reason
For Tax Reduction

(Continued from page 1) flood condition, also, "The City allowed my neighbors to put an old fashioned cess pool right under my window—not even a modern septic tank. Everything has been done to ruin my lot."

The Mayor said cess pools came within the province of the Sanitary District, and Mawdsley said that the same flood condition prevailed throughout the entire district. Miss McGee thought her flood condition was worse than her neighbors' and was the fault of the city for filling in gutters of Ocean Avenue without proper provision for draining. "And it was done on purpose—putting in a shoulder that shunted the water away from the Pine Inn and sent it over into our district. Everything under heaven has been done to ruin my property. People used to admire my garden. Now I can't have a garden. The soil is all washed away."

"Every town has flood conditions," said Councilman Fred Godwin, "look at Los Angeles."

"Now honestly," he said in his most persuasive manner, "wouldn't you rather your lot was worth $1300 than $900?"

"I'm not interested in paper values," Miss McGee remarked tartly.

At this point the Mayor closed the discussion with "At some future time the city will have to revise its flood control program. Some day the citizens will have to pay for proper drainage. Now it is up to every property owner to protect his property as best he can. Petition denied."

Myron Oliver Hangs
Last Show Today

Myron Oliver, president of the Carmel Art Association, who has announced that he will not be a candidate for re-election in the August 14 election of officers for the organization, presents the last exhibition of his term, a general showing of oils, opening tomorrow, July 15, at the Dolores street gallery.

Among the local artists who will be represented in the exhibition are John O'Shea, with a number of new paintings depicting the Carmel coast; Paul Mays, Charlotte Morgan; Frank Moore; Jules Flobert; and Jean Caldwell.

The CAMERA SHOP offers a Variety of Photographic Services . . .

Carmel's new photographic studio, The Camera Shop, has been recently redecorated, renovated and beautified . . . in keeping with the spirit of the Village. Studio floor is turquoise blue, walls display interesting prints. The entrance, within the Seven Arts Court lends an atmosphere of color and charm. The background, however, is only one reason for dropping in for a visit.

Photographic services are inclusive: portraits of adults and children. Pictures of parties, Weddings and fraternal groups; copying of old photographs, enlargements, printing, and virtually every type of skilled photographic work. The atmosphere is casual and friendly, the workmanship is experienced and competent. Several recent portraits—of army officers and others—are top-flight, created with an understanding of light and shadow and composition.

When you or your friends stroll along Ocean Avenue, turn south at Lincoln. You can't miss Seven Arts Court, and the sign of The Camera Shop. Drop in—we'll be glad to show you our work and talk over your photographic needs and interests.
